ENGLAND AND FRANCE, IT IS REPORTED, HAVE DECIDED TO ACCEPT

CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD IN WASHINGTON IF AGREEABLE TO POWERS

(By United Press)

England Will Accept
London, July 11—Premier Lloyd George is expected to accept for Great Britain the invitation of President Harding to enter a conference discussing a disarmament alliance. Ambassador George Harvey was believed to have delivered President Harding's personal invitation at the premier's country home. Premiers of overseas dominions were present. It is believed, when the invitation was extended. A renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance is understood to be kept in abeyance pending settlement of the disarmament question.

Disarmament Conference to Define International Relations

Washington, July 11—Following as a salient point of Harding's call for a disarmament conference, it is expected to define relations and solve the Pacific and Far Eastern questions, considering all and reaching an understanding regarding the same.

Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan with the United States, known as the principal associated powers, are expected to attend the conference to be held in Washington at a time mutually agreed upon.

France Will Accept

Paris, July 11—France no doubt will accept the Harding invitation to a disarmament conference, according to unofficial statements made in the capital.

Disarmament Conference Certain

Washington, July 11—A disarmament conference in Washington is regarded as certain. Following informal conversations, Secretary of State Hughes was preparing official invitations.

Great Britain and Japan, through public statements of leaders, have bound themselves to a disarmament conference.

Public sentiment in Italy and France will not allow the respective governments to disregard the invitations to the conference.

One of the fundamental factors to be taken cognizance of in the conference is that by this step America has begun a framework to prevent war. President Harding and Secretary Hughes have included in their call consideration of questions in the Pacific and Far East.

Favorable Replies Expected

Washington, July 11—This government expects favorable replies from all the five nations that have received tentative invitations to a disarmament conference. The belief is expressed in authoritative quarters that the governments will send representatives to discuss the cut in disarmament and the Pacific and Far Eastern questions.

That such a conference will secure the peace of the world was a statement made. It has been explained why the conference was broached to include land and naval armaments and was also intimated that many of the obstacles in the way of disarmament may be wiped out before the conference really starts. It was pointed out that the question of land armaments was almost sure to come up and so the conference was broadened and necessitated calling in France and Italy. Relations in the Pacific is one of the important subjects to be discussed.

Friendly Co-operation U. S. and Great Britain Prime Peace Factor

asserting the invitation of President Harding had been virtually accepted. "The first principle of our policy," said Lloyd George, "is friendly co-operation of the United States and Great Britain."

"I am convinced that on that, more than any other factor, depends world peace."

"We also desire to maintain our friendship with Japan," said the premier. "The Anglo-Japanese alliance is not only beneficial to ourselves, but to the peace of the Far East. It is the desire of the British empire and Japan that an agreement shall be brought about in supreme accord with the league of nations."

Great Britain Virtually Accepts

London, July 11—"Great Britain," said Premier Lloyd George, "has virtually accepted President Harding's invitation to participate in a disarmament conference." Lloyd George addressed the house of commons and welcomed the initiative of President Harding.

France Takes Matter Under Advisement

Paris, July 11—The French government has taken under advisement the proposal of the United States to participate in a disarmament conference. Sheldon Whitehouse, American charge d'affaires, called at the foreign office with instructions to ascertain the French attitude, and was told a reply would be made later. Indications are the French may ask for reservations on account of the status of Germany.

Disorders Continued Up to Time of Truce

Washington, July 11—The agricultural inquiry has started in house and senate and the profiteer who has been fattening on farmer producer and the ultimate consumer is to be smoked out. Sweeping authority to go into the highways and byways from the farms to the dinner table has been given the investigators.

Foodstuffs and wearing apparel are to be examined, and wool will be traced from the sheep's backs and cotton from the fields to the wearer of these goods.

Agriculture, the members contend, is in a state of distress and that economic conditions do not justify such a state of affairs. Somebody is getting the farmers' profits and the buyers continue to pay high prices.

AIRPLANE CRASH

Moundsville, W. Va., July 11—Five persons were killed and 50 injured at Langin field here yesterday when a Martin bombing plane crashed into a group of automobiles parked on the grounds. An explosion followed, setting fire to the machine.

The dead, all spectators, were: Carl Pettit, Fred Edge, Ralph Hartzell, Mrs. George Long, 5, Moundsville, and an unidentified child.

Lieut. C. R. McIve, pilot, and Lieut. T. H. Dunton, assistant pilot, were rescued by Carl Miller, coach at Bethany college.

An apparent effort was made, it was said, to throw the plane into the river, but it was flying too low, and crashed into automobile lined along the river bank.

Sixteen automobiles were burned and the dead, in most instances, were trapped in the machines. Sergeant Ray Duley, on duty at the field, assisted Coach Miller, a former army aviator, in extracting McIve and Dunton from the plane.

Both tanks of the aircraft exploded, hurling the burning fuel over the cars and spectators for several yards around.

BETWEEN POLES

This information was contained in an official telegram which the White Russian, or Ruthenian republican mission in Berlin, received today.

At the mission it was declared that the entire peasant population in the region occupied by Zeligowsky in the Vilna district, was in revolt.

The peasant revolutionaries are reported to be attacking successfully the Zeligowsky forces in the Benzy district. Zeligowsky's latest action in trying to force Ruthenian youths into the irregular Polish army is said to have provoked the uprising.

AT SOUTH ST. PAUL
ENDORSED BY WAREHOUSE

Minneapolis, July 11—The State Railroad and Warehouse commission has issued an order reducing commission charges and charges for weighing live stock to the schedule as was in effect in 1919. The commission adopted the recommendations of R. J. Wells, supervisor of stock yards for the state in South St. Paul. The new rates are effective July 11.

The reduction in rates amounts to from about 20 per cent to 40 per cent. The schedule of rates to be in effect follows:

Cattle, 70c a head and $18 a car medium.

Calves, 30c a head and $20 a car maximum, in cars up to 36 feet in length.

For less than carloads and driven in live stock: 80 cents per head for cattle less than 15 head; 35 cents per head for calves if less than 23 head; 30 cents per head for hogs if less than 25 head; 25 cents per head for sheep and goats if less than 30 head. Car load rates will apply when the number exceeds those mentioned.

The commissions for buying live stock as fixed today follows: Cattle, 50 cents a head, with a maximum of $13 a year; calves, 30 cents a head and $12 per single deck car; milkers and springers, 1 a head and $20 a car maximum; hogs, 20 cents a head and $10 per car maximum; feeding pigs, $15 per single deck car or $20 per double deck car; sheep, 25 cents per head, $10 per single deck car and $15 per double deck car; breeding ewes, 30 cents a head and $15 per single deck car and $20 per double deck car.

(By United Press)

Searching for the Lost Mine

(By United Press)

Edmonton, Alberta, July 11—An expedition was being organized here today to search for the "lost gold mine" of Lost River.

The "lost mine" has long been one of the romantic traditions of the North and is believed to be fabulously rich. Apparently there have been only two men who knew how to find it. The one, a wandering Indian from the Mackenzie river district, came into Fort St. John's with a gold nugget as big as a walnut and though he could not talk any dialect, understood by local whites or Indians, he indicated by signs that he had found the lump in the dry bed of a stream to the northwest.

The other was a white trapper who returned from period trips into the wilderness with a quantity of coarse gold. Each time he spent his treasure lavishly and then disappeared again, outwitting the efforts of trackers, who tried to trail him to the source of his wealth. He was found frozen to death on the trail one day and took his secret to the grave.

The expedition now being organized will proceed on the assumption that the mine is in the bed of a dry river, known as the Lost River, because it no longer contains water except after heavy rains, and the river bed will be prospected thoroughly.

Bismarck, July 9—A. C. Townley, president of the National Nonpartisan league, was dealt two hard blows here today when a jury in the district court freed J. W. Brinton, Townley's former private secretary on a charge of perjury, and hearings in the bankruptcy proceedings against Townley growing out of his commercial enterprises, were reopened before H. F. O'Hare, referee in bankruptcy.

Brinton was tried for perjury in connection with his testimony before the house committee of the North Dakota legislature investigating the Bank of North Dakota last winter.

WAR BREAKS OUT
BETWEEN POLES
AND RUTHENIANS

Berlin, July 9—War has broken out on the old German-Russian front. White Russian volunteer soldiers, armed with rifles and machine guns, are filling the old trenches and block-houses, reversing the battle lines, while Polish irregulars under General Zeligowsky, are attacking them with armored automobiles.

This information was contained in an official telegram which the White Russian, or Ruthenian republican mission in Berlin, received today.

At the mission it was declared that the entire peasant population in the region occupied by Zeligowsky in the Vilna district, was in revolt.

The peasant revolutionaries are reported to be attacking successfully the Zeligowsky forces in the Benzy district. Zeligowsky's latest action in trying to force Ruthenian youths into the irregular Polish army is said to have provoked the uprising.

1919 YARDS RATE
AGAIN EFFECTIVE

RECOMMENDATION OF SUPERVISOR AT SOUTH ST. PAUL INDORSED BY WAREHOUSE COMMISSION

Minneapolis, July 11—The State Railroad and Warehouse commission has issued an order reducing commission charges and charges for weighing live stock to the schedule as was in effect in 1919. The commission adopted the recommendations of R. J. Wells, supervisor of stock yards for the state in South St. Paul. The new rates are effective July 11.

The reduction in rates amounts to from about 20 per cent to 40 per cent. The schedule of rates to be in effect follows:

Cattle, 70c a head and $18 a car medium.
Calves, 30c a head and $20 a car maximum, in cars up to 36 feet in length.
Hogs, in cars not over 36 feet long, 20c a head and $12 maximum for single deck cars and $18 maximum for double deck cars; $14 maximum for single cars more than 36 feet long and $20 for double deck.

Sheep, 20c per head and $12 maximum for single deck cars, $18 for double deck, for cars not more than 36 feet; $14 for single deck and $20 double deck of cars more than 36 feet long.

Mixed car loads, where more than one kind of live stock is in a car, $20 per car 36 feet long as the maximum and $22 for longer cars.

For less than carloads and driven in live stock: 80 cents per head for cattle if less than 15 head; 25 cents per head for calves if less than 20 head; 30 cents per head for hogs if less than 25 head; 25 cents per head for sheep and goats if less than 30 head. Car load rates will apply when the number exceeds those mentioned.

The commissions for buying live stock as fixed today follows: Cattle, 50 cents a head, with a maximum of $13 a year; calves, 30 cents a head and $12 per single deck car; milkers and springers, 1 a head and $20 a car maximum; hogs, 20 cents a head and $10 per car maximum; feeding pigs, $15 per single deck car or $20 per double deck car; sheep, 25 cents per head, $10 per single deck car and $15 per double deck car; breeding ewes, 30 cents a head and $15 per single deck car and $20 per double deck car.

The charges for weighing live stock are fixed as follows: 3 cents per head for cattle and calves; 1½ cents per head for hogs, and 1 cent for sheep.

In arriving at the schedule of charges, the commission says that it was guided by the principles laid down in the decision of the supreme court in the case of the state against Rogers & Rogers upholding the constitutionality of the act under which the commission proceeded.

THE IRISH-BRITISH TRUCE IS WELCOMED
BY BLOWING SIRENS

IN DUBLIN HARBOR, AND BLACK AND TANS AND SINN FEINERS BECOME FRIENDLY

(By United Press)

Dublin, July 11—As the clocks of Dublin struck the noon hour, their sound was drowned by the roar of ships' sirens welcoming the truce now effective between Sinn Feiners and British. Groups of Black and Tans strolled from their barracks, unarmed, and fraternized with Sinn Fein republicans, talking of peace. In place of sentries with fixed bayonets, one saw policemen patrolling their beats as in times of peace.

Searching for the Lost Mine

(By United Press)

Edmonton, Alberta, July 11—An expedition was being organized here today to search for the "lost gold mine" of Lost River.

The "lost mine" has long been one of the romantic traditions of the North and is believed to be fabulously rich. Apparently there have been only two men who knew how to find it. The one, a wandering Indian from the Mackenzie river district, came into Fort St. John's with a gold nugget as big as a walnut and though he could not talk any dialect, understood by local whites or Indians, he indicated by signs that he had found the lump in the dry bed of a stream to northwest.

The other was a white trapper who returned from period trips into the wilderness with a quantity of coarse gold. Each time he spent his treasure lavishly and then disappeared again, outwitting the efforts of trackers, who tried to trail him to the source of his wealth. He was found frozen to death on the trail one day and took his secret to the grave.

The expedition now being organized will proceed on the assumption that the mine is in the bed of a dry river, known as the Lost River, because it no longer contains water except after heavy rains, and the river bed will be prospected thoroughly.

From A Prison Cell To College Degree

New York, July 11—United Press.—One of the high honor students graduated from Columbia University this summer was Frank Tannenbaum, whose notions of world reform have been somewhat modified by his experience as a soldier, and are far milder than he was one of the leaders of the turbulent mobs that invaded churches in this city in 1914. The ideas that he held then earned him a year in the penitentiary on Blackwells Island. The idea that he has now has won him a degree and election to Phi Beta Kappa, highest honors in economics and history at Columbia and promise to make him an author of outstanding distinction in his chosen field—organized labor in America.

For Tannenbaum, though only twenty-seven years old, is the author of what it is said to be an extremely important book, "The labor movement". Tannenbaum's entire boyhood education consisted of eight months in a New England rural school. That was in his twelfth year. When he was thirteen he came to New York and for the next eight years worked at all sorts of jobs from waiter in a restaurant to elevator boy. When he was twenty-one he went to Blackwells Island for a year for I. W. W. activities.

He emerged from prison convinced of the necessity of an education. He contrived to get into Columbia, and left it with a $2000 fellowship for industrial research work. Ultimately, he says, he intends to return to work in the railroad shops.

TOO LADYLIKE FOR "GRAMPA"

Old Gentleman Couldn't Recall Sailors in His Time Doing Anything Like Skipping Rope.

Grampa served in the navy quite a while ago—under Admiral Farragut or John Paul Jones or some of those persons. In those days, you remember, all sailors wore Horace Greeley whiskers and had either a profane parrot, a wooden leg or a girl in every port. Grampa's granddaughter, Cordella May, keeps company with a machinist's mate, first class, on the destroyer Dyer, now with the other destroyers in the Hudson river.

His name is Buck. Buck thought Cordella May would like it if he invited Grampa to come along with her to visit the Dyer. Cordella May didn't like it at all, as a matter of fact, but Grampa accepted with alacrity.

"How'd you like it, Pa?" inquired Cordella May's mother, when Grampa got back home. "Djhave a good time?"

"I did not," said Grampa. "What did Cordella May do?" Ma thought she knew right away where to hang the guilt. But she was wrong. "She didn't do nothin' except gawk at that lubber of her'n," said Grampa, "but the navy's gone the'll, that's what."

"No such a thing," demurred Ma. "They leave here first o' May for Newport, an' you heard Buck say that yourself."

"Sissies! Old ladies! Milk an' water boys!" Grampa exploded. "Why, Mary, guess what the first thing I saw on that frigate was?"

Ma had never served on a destroyer, so, of course, couldn't guess. "Why, I see a great big tub of a lad and what was he doin' but skippin' rope!" Skippin' rope, mind ye! A sailor skippin' rope! I looked about me expecting to find the rest of the crew playin' postoffice with one another. Skippin' rope!"

Grampa groaned at the thought. Buck meanwhile had arrived and overheard. He gave the loud, raucous laugh of a machinist's mate, first class, who is amused at something.

"Don't say a word to him," he cautioned Ma and Cordella May later, when Grampa had gone to bed to dream of John Paul Jones playing tidlywinks with Admiral Farragut on a rose-bedecked battleship. "Don't say a word, but the guy he saw skippin' rope is Soakem Slocum, the heavy-weight champion of the flotilla. He's getting in trim for the bouts up at Newport."—New York Sun.

Says Americans Avoid Sunlight. One feature struck me in the schools, and it also struck me in the hotels and in private houses, and that is the avoidance of sunlight. A well-conducted window in America must have lace curtains drawn across it, and two blinds, one brown and one green, pulled accurately half-way down. Even in the great country houses, where no one could look in, and no one look out without seeing suspicious

One chief use is to accumulate money to trade with and make more. Many of our savings depositors are saving for a start in business or farming.

Another use is to save for a home, and thus double the return on the money by saving rent.

Still another use is to have a growing reserve fund, safe and always ready in case of need. We are paying a safe and permanent rate of 4 per cent interest.

The large number of felts—clerks in offices, workers in factories, attendants on elevators, bell-boys and hotel clerks—who live their life in artificial light forms a large percentage of the population, and this absence of out-door life may account to some extent for the pallid and sallow complexion of those who have to endure it. They are hardly inferior to the diamond back terrapin, but are seldom seen in the markets for two reasons—because they do not ship well and because local demand, where they are caught, uses up the supply. They are home-consumption delicacies, like the honey banana, the emerald-gem muskmelon and the fall pippin apple—too good for the ordinary market and sure to lose their original flavor in passing through the hands of the middleman.

"How'd you like it, Pa?" inquired Cordelia May's mother, when Grampa got back home. "I have a good time?" "I did not," said Grampa.

"What did Cordelia May do?" Ma thought she knew right away where to hang the gulf. But she was wrong. "She didn't do nothin' except gawk at that lubber of her'n," said Grampa, "but the navy's gone 'twell, that's what."

"No such a thing," demurred Ma. "They leave here first o' May for Newport, an' you heard Buck say that yourself."

"Sissies! Old ladies! Milk an' water boys!" Grampa exploded. "Why, Mary, guess what the first thing I saw on that frigate was?"

Ma had never served on a destroyer, so, of course, couldn't guess.

"Why, I see a great big tub of a lad and what was he doin' but skippin' rope! Skippin' rope, mind ye! A sailor skippin' rope! I looked at me expectin' to find the rest of the crew playin' postoffice with one another. Skippin' rope!"

Grampa groaned at the thought.

Buck meanwhile had arrived and overheard. He gave the loud, raucous laugh of a machinist's mate, first class, who is amused at something.

"Don't say a word to him," he cautioned Ma and Cordelia May later, when Grampa had gone to bed to dream of John Paul Jones playing tidlywinks with Admiral Farragut on a rose-bedecked battleship. "Don't say a word, but the guy he saw skippin' rope is Soukum Stoom, the heavy-weight champion of the flotilla. He's getting in trim for the bouts up at Newport."—New York Sun.

Says Americans Avoid Sunlight.

One feature struck me in the schools, and it also struck me in the hotels and in private houses, and that is the avoidance of sunlight. A well-conducted window in America must have lace curtains drawn across it, and two blinds, one brown and one green, pulled accurately half-way down. Even in the great country houses, where no one could look in, and no one look out without seeing spacious

The electric light is all the time turned on full. Even in the hotels if you leave your room for half an hour, having raised your blinds, you will find them carefully drawn down again on returning. The large number of folks—clerks in offices, workers in factories, attendants on elevators, bell-boys and hotel clerks—who live their life in artificial light forms a large percentage of the population, and this absence of out-door life may account to some extent for the pallid and sallow complexion of those who have to endure it. Delicacies That Do Not Travel.
Least appreciated, relatively to their gastronomical merits, are the soft-shelled turtles, native of the large streams and lakes. They are hardly inferior to the diamond back terrapin, but are seldom seen in the markets for two reasons—because they do not ship well and because local demand, where they are caught, uses up the supply. They are home-consumption delicacies, like the honey banana, the emerald-gem muskmelon and the fall pippin apple—too good for the ordinary market and sure to lose their original flavor in passing through the hands of the middleman.

Drink Plenty of Water.

Are you taking at least eight glasses of water a day? It is food and medicine! It is more necessary to drink at least this amount than to comb your hair or wash your face. If our bodies did not have an enormous capacity for taking punishment the terrible perils we daily subject ourselves to if we do not drink enough water would be understood by every man, woman and child.

It can be figured out, mathematically almost, that the lungs give off what amounts to more than two glasses of water a day. The skin gives off that much, or a good deal more, while the kidneys are subject to all sorts of irritations, followed by disease, when the fluids of the body are too heavy with the wastes and breakdown from every one of the billions of body cells. Copious water drinking dilutes these wastes.—Chicago Tribune.

They Had One, Too.

Five-year-old Mary Ellen likes the hospital in their square because when she goes over to visit the nurses they always take her around to see the new babies there. But recently her visits have been fewer than usual as her next-door neighbor has a small incubator which has been hatching fluffy chickens. Interestingly Mary Ellen has been watching him take them from the incubator.

But a few days back Mary Ellen went to the hospital and into the kitchen where they were placing a new style ice box. For a little while she looked at it and then she said to one of the workmen, "They always showed me the babies, but I never did see the incubator before."—Indianapolis News.

HOW HATS MAY BE RENEWED

Ironing and Bleaching Simple Matter Which May Be Easily Accomplished at Home.

A hat which becomes limp with dampness may be restored by pressing it with a warm iron over a damp cloth. A white straw or leghorn hat, writes a correspondent, may be bleached by washing with soap and lukewarm water after which it should be well brushed with oxalic acid solution or a paste of lemon juice and sulphur. If the oxalic acid forms bubbles when poured on a clean white pine board it is too strong for use and should be diluted. If the straw is brittle and soap-and-water cannot be used on it, it should be well brushed before using the oxalic acid and rinsed with clear water afterwards. The hat may be dried by covering it with a cloth and pressing with a warm iron or placing it in the sun.

Black straw hats may be cleaned with a piece of velvet which has been dipped in gasoline. If it is still not black enough after this process is finished it may be dyed with commercial dyes. Colored straw hats may be cleaned and colored in the same way. Most commercial dyes come in dark shades and may be diluted by the use of a neutral liquid. A straw hat may be reshaped by dampening the brim and bending it to the shape desired.

Faded flowers which are soiled should be cleaned first by shaking them in gasoline, after which water colors and oil paints mixed with gasoline may be used to tint them. If the whole flower is to be colored it may be dipped in the bowl of coloring, after which the center may be painted a darker shade with a camel's hair brush. The edges of the petals may be tinted by dipping them in a bowl of less dilute coloring matter. The flowers may be dried by placing a weight on the stems and allowing them to hang from the edge of a table or shelf. The appearance of the flowers is improved by trimming off all frayed edges.

Malines, chiffon and laces are best cleaned in gasoline. They may be colored by a solution of oil paints and gasoline or if they can be washed in water without injury, colored soaps will be found satisfactory in giving them new colors. Malines may be freshened by passing it before the spout of a kettle from which a small amount of steam is coming. Care should be taken to prevent the material from becoming too moist.

Woman's Case Amazes Brainerd

A business man's wife suffered for two years with sore, watery eyes, which pained day and night. Finally she tried simple camphor, hydnastil, witchhazel, etc., as mixed in Lavoptin eye wash. This helped her a little. ONCE, Another lady reports: "It leaves eyes cool and fresh." One small bottle Lavoptin usually helps ANY CASE weak, strained or inflamed eyes. Aluminum eye cup FREE. But a few days back Mary Ellen went to the hospital and into the kitchen where they were placing a new style ice box. For a little while she looked at it and then she said to one of the workmen, "They always showed me the babies, but I never did see the incubator before."—Indianapolis News.

Lovers' Quarrels Not Trifles.

It has been said that lovers' quarrels are but the renewal of love. There was never a truer word. Every quarrel is a blot on a fair page. Forgiveness may erase it, but, at the best, the mark of the erasure is there forever, and the page wears thin.—S. G. Tallentyre.

HOW HATS MAY BE RENEWED

Ironing and Bleaching Simple Matter Which May Be Easily Accomplished at Home.

A hat which becomes limp with dampness may be restored by pressing it with a warm iron over a damp cloth. A white straw or leghorn hat, writes a correspondent, may be bleached by washing with soap and lukewarm water after which it should be well brushed with oxalic acid solution or a paste of lemon juice and sulphur. If the oxalic acid forms bubbles when poured on a clean white pine board it is too strong for use and should be diluted. If the straw is brittle and soap and water cannot be used on it, it should be well brushed before using the oxalic acid and rinsed with clear water afterwards. The hat may be dried by covering it with a cloth and pressing with a warm iron or placing it in the sun.

Black straw hats may be cleaned with a piece of velvet which has been dipped in gasoline. If it is still not black enough after this process is finished it may be dyed with commercial dyes. Colored straw hats may be cleaned and colored in the same way. Most commercial dyes come in dark shades and may be diluted by the use of a neutral liquid. A straw hat may be reshaped by dampening the brim and bending it to the shape desired.

Faded flowers which are soiled should be cleaned first by shaking them in gasoline, after which water colors and oil paints mixed with gasoline may be used to tint them. If the whole flower is to be colored it may be dipped in the bowl of coloring, after which the center may be painted a darker shade with a camel's hair brush. The edges of the petals may be tinted by dipping them in a bowl of less dilute coloring matter. The flowers may be dried by placing a weight on the stems and allowing them to hang from the edge of a table or shelf. The appearance of the flowers is improved by trimming off all frayed edges.

Malines, chiffon and laces are best cleaned in gasoline. They may be colored by a solution of oil paints and gasoline or if they can be washed in water without injury, colored soaps will be found satisfactory in giving them new colors. Malines may be freshened by passing it before the spout of a kettle from which a small amount of steam is coming. Care should be taken to prevent the material from becoming too moist.

DROP IN PRICES ACCOUNTS FOR FALL IN FOREIGN TRADE

Foreign trade of the United States during the closing months of the fiscal year just ended has shown a severe drop in figures over preceding years, states the Foreign Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, and is due in a much larger degree to a fall in price than in quantity of goods imported and exported.

We are accustomed, says the report, to measure our imports and exports by the figure of total value, and when we see that the total value of imports in May, the latest month for which figures are available, was only $205,000,000 against $431,000,000 in the same month of last year, we involuntarily assume that trade "has fallen off one half and when we see that exports of May were only $333,000,000 against $746,000,000 in May 1920, we again assume that our trade has been reduced by about one half. The fact is, however, that a very large proportion of these reductions in the aggregate value of all articles imported and of all articles exported is due in much larger degree to lower prices than to reduced quantities.

For instance, says the statement, it may be remarked that while the official figures of raw cotton imported in May 1921 do show a reduction of 33 per cent in quantity as compared with May 1920, the figures of value for the same month show a fall of 61 per cent. Fibers, another important commodity in our industry, shows a decrease of 21 per cent in quantity imported in May 1921, as compared with the same month last year, but the decrease in value for the same period is 54 per cent. Hides show a reduction of 25 per cent in quantity for the period under consideration, and a reduction in value of 77 per cent. In rubber quantity falls off 44 per cent, and value 78 per cent. In the case of raw silk, the quantity moved in May 1921 shows an increase of 75 per cent over May of the preceding year, but a decrease of 4 per cent in value.

On the export side of the question conditions are very similar. Cotton exported shows an increase in quantity of 33 per cent and a decrease in value of 61 per cent in the comparison of May 1921 with May 1920. Illuminating oil falls off 9 per cent in quantity, and 40 per cent in value.

In view of these statements based on figures supplied by the Department of Commerce, it would appear that the nation's business has not undergone any serious contraction, but rather that business has continued most gratifying in the face of difficulties.

THE POWER TO MAKE WAR

After a thorough debate on the entire subject of disarmament the House of Representatives in response to the desire of President Harding who said: "I am vastly more concerned with the favorable attitude of the Congress on this question than

I am as to the form of expressing that attitude," has agreed to Senator Borah's suggestion for disarmament. In the beginning the House was inclined to extend the scope of the Senator's suggestion that Great Britain and Japan be requested "to send representatives to a conference which shall be charged with the duty of promptly entering into an understanding or an agreement by which the Naval expenditures and building programs of said governments, the United States, Great Britain and Japan shall be reduced annually during the next five years to such an extent and upon such terms as may be agreed upon."

Senator Borah has apparently been able to convince Congress that there are only three great powers that are able to institute effective warfare. The balance of the governments of the world have broken themselves in the recent world war. The Senator holds that there is nothing to this disarmament proposition that cannot be settled by the three powers that have been named. After months of debate the House of Representatives has agreed to the Senate resolution—and they cheered loudly when they did it.

Gen. Zebulon Pike of the United States army saw the peak in 1806 and is generally regarded as the first white man to discover it. This is disputed, however. Nowadays many tourists get to the top of it every day during the summer by automobile.

Coming in New Play

Tom Mix, the Fox daredevil of the screen is coming to the Lyceum theatre today and Tuesday in "A Ridin' Romeo." In this picture Tom does some new stunts that Manager Hiller declares will make you laugh while they give you a thrill. Tom wrote the play himself, so you can realize that he has to put into it all the things he likes to do; and besides, Tom would just naturally write into a story more daredevilry than an ordinary writer might imagine he could do. You see, Tom has done probably bigger thrillers on the range when he was a cowboy and when no one was watching him than he ever has put on the screen.

He has written himself into all kinds of mischievous trouble in "A Ridin' Romeo." Everybody but his sweetheart is crying him down, until they find he hasn't done half the things charged against him, and nothing really criminal. Then crowdlike, everybody turns out to cheer for him.

Cultivate Observation.

Observation is a quality that is easy to cultivate if you make up your mind to do so. Try to notice the birds and beasts, the men and things you see every day. Ask yourself at night what you have seen during the day. At first your answers will be very short, but soon you will find that you are beginning really to see things. It is not difficult, and it is well worth while. Allied with observation is the power of imagination. The first enables us to see things as they are; by means of the second we see things as they might be. Imagination makes use not of the outward eye, but of the mind's eye.

Tracing Movement of Birds.

The desire to learn what become of birds that flew south with the approach of cold weather led Audubon, the great American naturalist, to place silver threads about the legs of a brood of phoebes. The following spring he was rewarded by having two of the birds return to nest near the haunts where they learned to fly.

This occurred early in the Nineteenth century, and was the first known case in America of bird banding. Since that time this means of securing information on the movements and life history of migratory birds has been used by many societies, and every fall thousands of birds fly south bearing a narrow ring, stamped with a number, about one of its legs.

"EVERYBODY IN" IS CARNIVAL SLOGAN

Home Town Carnival Committee Friends to Have Meeting at the Chamber of Commerce

ON TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 12

Societies, Churches, Fraternal Organizations and Others Expected to Cooperate (Contributed)

The committee in charge of Brainerd's "Home Town Carnival" announce that they have met with such enthusiasm and encouragement that the carnival is already assured of success.

Many big attractions are being planned and a definite working plan is being formulated, and with a united Brainerd to work for complete success, predictions of several times the financial success desired are the rule.

Societies, churches and fraternal organizations, one and all sing the praises of the carnival plan now under way and many pastors placed their names on the list of underwriters guaranteeing the success of the "Home Town Carnival". This list of 100 men is nearly complete and will be finished very soon.

Through the courtesy of O. J. Bouma and the Chamber of Commerce office room and a meeting place for the committee have been provided.

A meeting will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to effect a permanent organization. Everyone interested in the "Home Town Carnival" and the betterment of Brainerd should be present at this meeting and especially should representatives of churches and fraternal organizations be there.

MANY WATER LEAKS

Water and Light Board Reported Many on Saturday, People Should Have Water Supply on Hand

On Saturday the water and light board received notice of four or five large leaks in the city, located on the north side and in Northeast Brainerd.

Secretary McKay said such leaks would continue to increase throughout the city because the old pipe material was breaking down. People should take some measure of protection and have a supply of water hoarded up to carry them over periods when water is shut off to repair leaks.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES MADE

Dr. Fred Davis, Former Brainerd Boy, Made the Presentation Address at Banquet

Brainerd, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other Rotarians went to Grand View Lodge, Gull Lake, and there enjoyed the launch rides, a horse shoe throwing contest between Brainerd and Minneapolis Rotarians, and then rubbed elbows at a banquet served at 7:30 p. m.

The charter was formally presented to the Brainerd Rotary club on behalf of the international association by Dr. Fred Davis, who is president of the Rotary club of Faribault. Dr. Davis is a former Brainerd boy and graduate of the Brainerd high school. His father in the old days was an Episcopal minister of Brainerd.

Other Minneapolis Rotarians who spoke were Forest Wheeler, secretary of the civil service commission of Minneapolis; John Spencer and E. B. Johnson of Minneapolis who spoke on their Rotary and what it had accomplished.

David Swift of the Minneapolis club gave a fascinating series of sleight of hand tricks and had Rev. E. A. Cook and H. F. Michael assisting him. There were talks by Brainerd Rotarians.

The officers of the Brainerd club are President H. F. Michael, Vice President S. R. Adair, Secretary Walter P. Wieland, Treasurer A. J. Hayes, Sergeant-at-arms John F. Woodhead.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

Hair that loses its color, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

ROTARIANS ENJOY GULL LAKE BREEZES

Charter Presented to Brainerd Rotarians at Function Held at Grand View Lodge

INTERESTING ADDRESSES MADE

Dr. Fred Davis, Former Brainerd Boy, Made the Presentation Address at Banquet

Brainerd, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other Rotarians went to Grand View Lodge, Gull lake, and there enjoyed the launch rides, a horse shoe throwing contest between Brainerd and Minneapolis Rotarians, and then rubbed elbows at a banquet served at 7:30 p. m.

The charter was formally presented to the Brainerd Rotary club on behalf of the international association by Dr. Fred Davis, who is president of the Rotary club of Faribault. Dr. Davis is a former Brainerd boy and a graduate of the Brainerd high school. His father in the old days was an Episcopal minister of Brainerd.

Other Minneapolis Rotarians who spoke were Forest Wheeler, secretary of the civil service commission of Minneapolis; John Spencer and E. B. Johnson of Minneapolis who spoke on their Rotary and what it had accomplished.

David Swift of the Minneapolis club gave a fascinating series of sleight of hand tricks and had Rev. E. A. Cook and H. F. Michael assisting him. There were talks by Brainerd Rotarians.

The officers of the Brainerd club are President H. F. Michael, Vice President S. R. Adair, Secretary Walter F. Wieland, Treasurer A. J. Hayes, Sergeant-at-arms John F. Woodhead.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

Hair that loses its color, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Lettie Changes Her Mind

By MURIEL BLAIR

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lettie's voice rose high and clear above the accompaniment that she played upon the cracked old piano. When Lettie sang she lost herself in the ecstasy of the melody. It was a song from "Rigoletto," but she did not know that; she had found the music among a miscellany left by the last summer boarder.

"That that girl!" exclaimed Mrs. French, setting down her pans. She emerged from the kitchen into the parlor where Lettie sat.

"I wish you'd have a little consideration for the boarders, Lettie," she said querulously. "Didn't you know Miss Latham's gone to her room with a sick headache? And you must choose this time to screech like a sick owl in the woods?"

Lettie came back to earth with a sigh. "I'm sorry, mother," she said and turned from the piano. Mrs. French went back into her kitchen again.

Just then the parlor door opened and Miss Latham entered. "Nobody would have guessed that this was the famous singer of the opera house, who was proudly displayed upon the billboards nightly during the season."

"Don't stop for me, Lettie," she said. "Won't you sing that again? Who taught you to sing?"

"Oh, it just comes natural, I reckon," said Lettie, with an embarrassed laugh.

"But, my dear, that was wonderful. Don't you know that you have a remarkable voice?" Miss Latham asked. "If it were trained you might have a great future before you."

Lettie left the piano stool. "You mean that I might get to sing at concerts?" she asked breathlessly. "Do you really think I ever could?"

"Oh, Lettie, anybody can sing at concerts. I mean something really big. Wouldn't you like to?"

"Would you like me to speak to a friend of mine in the city?" Miss Latham asked. "When I go back, I mean. Something might come of it, you know. Of course you would have to mention the matter to your mother."

Lettie sighed. Yes, there would be the trouble. Her mother and—William. What would he say?

The two impulses drew her in different ways. One way lay fame and joy and beauty; the other duty, but duty consecrated by love and wifehood.

She looked at William more critically than usual that evening.

"William, how would you like to go to town?" asked Lettie. "I mean, for a couple of years, maybe, before we get married."

William's brow clouded. He looked sullenly at her. "You mean that you want to put off our marriage?" he asked.

"Don't you want me to have a little happiness before we are married?" asked Lettie.

She spoke sharply, conscious of the intolerable struggle. William answered her thoughts.

"I know if you leave Stapleton you won't ever come back," he said.

"I reckon you're too mean to live!" cried Lettie angrily, and stood before him with flaming cheeks. "Take your ring back if you want to talk that way."

William took the ring clumsily. "If you change your mind, Lettie," he began heavily. But Lettie had left him. She was in Miss Latham's room upon her knees, sobbing.

"You must take me with you," she wept. "I can't stay here—I can't. I want to live in the town, to see the faces of people, to cultivate myself."

Miss Latham laid her hand on the girl's head.

"There is another side to the picture, my dear," she said. "Do you realize what you will have to go through—the days of labor, the nights of suffering, the loss of every ideal, the bruising of your heart, the shattered hopes of life and the promise of what might have been, vanishing with the passing years? Lettie," she said, earnestly, "if I could have the past ten years over again they would be much different. But I'll speak to the friend I told you of when I return—if you ask me again tomorrow."

Lettie went slowly down the stairs. Her mental pulse had come back to her. A sudden revulsion of feeling came over her. The tears ran down her cheeks.

A man stepped lightly out of the darkness.

"Lettie," he said, "I want to say—I don't want to stand in your light. I want you to go—I want you to be happy. Perhaps you'll think of me sometimes."

Lettie stretched out her arms and drew his head down to her own. "I'm going to stay, William," she said.

And Miss Latham, at her window above, heard and was glad.

Modern Dreadnaughts.

Vittorio Cuniberti, an Italian naval constructor, is said to have been the originator of the term "dreadnaught" as applied to naval vessels. This term is applied to a type of battleship which carries, besides a numerous battery of heavy guns, armament of light torpedo defense guns. The uniform strength of an armament in a dreadnaught supplies a unity of strength and protection and a higher speed than is obtained by other types of battleships. A dreadnaught has an unusually large displacement in proportion to the rest of her dimensions.

VENUS NEVER WITHOUT VEIL

Impenetrable Cloud Mask Envelops the Planet and Allows No Glimpse of Anything Beneath.

What makes the planet Venus so silver-bright? Many a one has put this question to himself, and must have been unable to find a satisfactory answer. London Answers states:

But the answer is that we see the silver lining of the cloud-mask which covers the features of Venus, for, as dazzling as this planet appears to us, it is enveloped in somber clouds that never seem to break and afford us a glimpse of what is below. At least there is no real proof that the markings which have been seen are on the planet's surface at all. Slow-moving cloud masses would be liable to be very deceptive and might well be mistaken for something more solid.

The persistency of Venus' vast cloud-envelope is remarkable; it is present year in and year out, reflecting the sunlight with mirrorlike brilliancy.

How Venus would appear without it is hard to say, as we have no knowledge whatever of the real composition of her globe.

All that can be said with any certainty is that she would lose a large share of her radiant beauty if this light reflecting shell of clouds were removed.

She might look like Mars or like Mercury, and would certainly fail to bewitch mankind as she does now.

The true secret of her peerless beauty, therefore, is her veil of clouds.

SAVAGE CHILD IS TRAINED

Baby Girls, From Their Earliest Infancy, Are Taught Household Duties by Their Mothers.

Most of those who know little of savage and semi-savage peoples naturally suppose that the children are allowed to "run wild" with no thought given to their training. This is far from the truth, particularly among some of the tribes of Togoland, on the African west coast.

As soon as a girl baby is able to toddle—and they are taught to walk much earlier than our children—the training of the girl is begun. She is given a calabash, and taught to balance it upon her head. Then the calabash is filled with water. Thus she learns her first duty in usefulness.

From this time forth the child becomes a part of the tribal or village organization. She goes with her mother to the river when the women go there for water. She is taught to sweep out the hut with a broom. Out in the forest she goes with mother and there learns what herbs and wild vegetables are good for food and which should be avoided. At home she is taught how to prepare the food the family eats. In a word, from her very earliest days the child is taught how to perform the domestic and other duties the average native woman must perform.—Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hope for the Middle Aged.

"There is no need to grow old and stiff."

This is Sir James Cantlie's message to the man or woman whose muscles appear to be losing their earlier resilience. It was delivered at a demonstration of Swedish gymnastics at the Albert hall in London. Sir James presided and after watching the graceful movements of the athletic young people of both sexes said he hoped they would continue their exercises even when they were no longer young in years. "Some of us," he added, "who are watching should be in the arena doing what these young ones are doing. Their muscles are not hard and inflexible. Ours probably are." Sir James added that 80 per cent of the people of the world were imperfect. One leg was shorter than the other by perhaps the eighth of an inch or a two hundredth part of an inch. It was abnormal to be normal.

Quality Before Quantity.

More bigness, after all, is never a sound criterion of value. Art connoisseurs know this. They will pay more for a tiny painting by Vibert than for huge canvases by painters inferior to Vibert in ideas—and in vision.

To think qualitatively is, and always has been, a fundamental human need. It will always be. Not how much we possess, how much we produce, how much we export or import, but the quality of all our doing and feeling and believing—that is the thing.

The wealthiest of nations can at the same time be the most discontented, restless and unhappy. "More, more, more," is never the slogan of true success. Think quality, not quantity, is the dictate of truth to all of us.—H. Addington Bruce in the Chicago Daily News.

Tired of Household Devotions.

E. E. Peterson, son of the late archbishop of Canterbury, in a reminiscence record of his family life, tells that the Benson children grew rather weary of the rigors of devotion established in the household of the archbishop and, when the latter was absent, of Mrs. Benson, mother of the brood, saying: "We won't have prayers tonight for a treat!"

Source of Style.

"Your speeches do not display the accuracy of grammatical form which used to distinguish them."

"I've been afraid something like that would happen," replied Senator Sorghum. "I have been obliged to depend on a brand-new stenographer."

Hard Question to Answer.

Bobbie was fond of big words, and never let a chance slip by of using one. He did not, however, always get them in the right place. He was sick abed with an attack of measles. The doctor calling one day, took up a hand mirror and showed Bobbie how he looked. Bobbie gazed at his mottled face disgustedly in the mirror, and then looking up to the doctor, asked, "When do you think I will be back to civilization?"

EYELASHES THAT PASTE ON

Artificial Decoration Proves Innovation at Hair Dressing Association Exhibition.

Ladies' eyelashes have become saleable articles. The dressing table in lady's boudoir may now be adorned, in addition to numerous other things that admirers assume to be natural, with artificial lashes that paste on right over the regular ones.

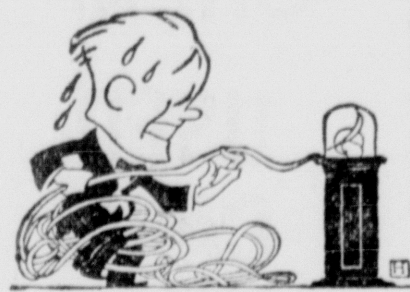

This innovation in feminine attractiveness was on display in New York recently at the American Ladies' Hair Dressing association exhibition.

Other nature savers included a half bobbed wig to cover old-fashioned long hair, thus relieving the necessity of cutting it. A parable in moving picture form was shown demonstrating how a wife who had lost her husband's affection, regained it by rejuvenating her rose-petal cheeks.

Spanish Influence.

To Spain, that country of narrow streets and wide skirts, designers have gone for inspiration. Thus the very full skirts of the new frocks often are punctuated with ball trimming which you remember having seen on the flying skirts of some Spanish dancer.

Flowers Are Dangerous.

The odors of many familiar flowers are poisonous. The old self-colored tulips, particularly those of a deep crimson hue, have a powerful odor which is dangerous when inhaled. This odor is of saffron flavor, and affects many people in a very peculiar manner. It-breathed deeply, it has the effect of producing light-headedness, which continues for some time, causing the sufferer to do and say all manner of remarkable and mysterious things. Its influence often lasts for an hour or two, and is followed by deep depression.

"Dut that girl!" exclaimed Mrs. French, setting down her pans. She emerged from the kitchen into the parlor where Lettie sat.

"I wish you'd have a little consideration for the boarders, Lettie," she said querulously. "Didn't you know Miss Latham's gone to her room with a sick headache? And you must choose this time to screech like a sick owl in the woods."

Lettie came back to earth with a sigh. "I'm sorry, mother," she said and turned from the piano. Mrs. French went back into her kitchen again.

Just then the parlor door opened and Miss Latham entered. Nobody would have guessed that this was the famous singer of the opera house, who was proudly displayed upon the billboards nightly during the season.

"Don't stop for me, Lettie," she said. "Won't you sing that again? Who taught you to sing?"

"Oh, it just comes natural, I reckon," said Lettie, with an embarrassed laugh.

"But, my dear, that was wonderful. Don't you know that you have a remarkable voice?" Miss Latham asked. "If it were trained you might have a great future before you."

Lettie left the piano stool. "You mean that I might get to sing at concerts?" she asked breathlessly. "Do you really think I ever could?"

"Oh, Lettie, anybody can sing at concerts. I mean something really big. Wouldn't you like to?"

"Would you like me to speak to a friend of mine in the city?" Miss Latham asked. "When I go back, I mean. Something might come of it, you know. Of course you would have to mention the matter to your mother."

Lettie sighed. Yes, there would be the trouble. Her mother and—William. What would he say?

The two impulses drew her in different ways. One way lay fame and joy and beauty; the other duty, but duty consecrated by love and wifehood.

She looked at William more critically than usual that evening.

"William, how would you like to go to town?" asked Lettie. "I mean, for a couple of years, maybe, before we get married."

William's brow clouded. He looked sullenly at her. "You mean that you want to put off our marriage?" he asked.

"Don't you want me to have a little happiness before we are married?" asked Lettie.

She spoke sharply, conscious of the intolerable struggle. William answered her thoughts.

"I know if you leave Stapleton you won't ever come back," he said.

"I reckon you're too mean to live!" cried Lettie angrily, and stood before him with flaming cheeks. "Take your ring back if you want to talk that way."

William took the ring clumsily.

"If you change your mind, Lettie," he began heavily. But Lettie had left him. She was in Miss Latham's room upon her knees, sobbing.

"You must take me with you," she wept. "I can't stay here—I can't. I want to live in the town, to see the faces of people, to cultivate myself."

Miss Latham laid her hand on the girl's head.

"There is another side to the picture, my dear," she said. "Do you realize what you will have to go through—the days of labor, the nights of suffering, the loss of every ideal, the branding of your heart, the shattered hopes of life and the promise of what might have been, vanishing with the passing years? Lettie," she said, earnestly, "if I could have the past ten years over again they would be much different. But I'll speak to the friend I told you of when I return—if you ask me again tomorrow."

Lettie went slowly down the stairs. Her mental pulse had come back to her. A sudden revulsion of feeling came over her. The tears ran down her cheeks.

A man stepped lightly out of the darkness.

"Lettie," he said, "I want to say—I don't want to stand in your light, I want you to go—I want you to be happy. Perhaps you'll think of me sometimes."

Lettie stretched out her arms and drew his head down to her own. "I'm going to stay, William," she said.

And Miss Latham, at her window above, heard and was glad.

Modern Dreadnaughts.

Vittorio Cimbriotti, an Italian naval constructor, is said to have been the originator of the term "dreadnaught" as applied to naval vessels. This term is applied to a type of battleship which carries, besides a numerous battery of heavy guns, armament of light torpedo defense guns. The uniform strength of an armament in a dreadnaught supplies a unity of strength and protection and a higher speed than is obtained by other types of battleships. A dreadnaught has an unusually large displacement in proportion to the rest of her dimensions.

VENUS NEVER WITHOUT VEIL

Impenetrable Cloud Mask Envelops the Planet and Allows No Glimpse of Anything Beneath.

What makes the planet Venus so silver-bright? Many a one has put this question to himself, and must have been unable to find a satisfactory answer. London Answers states:

But the answer is that we see the silver lining of the cloud-mask which covers the features of Venus, for, as dazzling as this planet appears to us, it is enveloped in somber clouds that never seem to break and afford us a glimpse of what is below. At least there is no real proof that the markings which have been seen are on the planet's surface at all. Slow-moving cloud masses would be liable to be very deceptive and might well be mistaken for something more solid.

The persistency of Venus' vast cloud-envelope is remarkable; it is present year in and year out, reflecting the sunlight with mirrorlike brilliancy.

How Venus would appear without it is hard to say, as we have no knowledge whatever of the real composition of her globe.

All that can be said with any certainty is that she would lose a large share of her radiant beauty if this light-reflecting shell of clouds were removed.

She might look like Mars or like Mercury, and would certainly fall to bewitch mankind as she does now.

The true secret of her peerless beauty, therefore, is her veil of clouds.

SAVAGE CHILD IS TRAINED

Baby Girls, From Their Earliest Infancy, Are Taught Household Duties by Their Mothers.

Most of those who know little of savage and semi-savage peoples naturally suppose that the children are allowed to "run wild" with no thought given to their training. This is far from the truth, particularly among some of the tribes of Togoland, on the African west coast.

As soon as a girl baby is able to toddle—and they are taught to walk much earlier than our children—the training of the girl is begun. She is given a calabash, and taught to balance it upon her head. Then the calabash is filled with water. Thus she learns her first duty in usefulness.

From this time forth the child becomes a part of the tribal or village organization. She goes with her mother to the river when the women go there for water. She is taught to sweep out the hut with a broom. Out in the forest she goes with mother and there learns what herbs and wild vegetables are good for food and which should be avoided. At home she is taught how to prepare the food the family eats. In a word, from her very earliest days the child is taught how to perform the domestic and other duties the average native woman must perform.—Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hope for the Middle Aged.

"There is no need to grow old and stiff."

This is Sir James Cantlie's message to the man or woman whose muscles appear to be losing their earlier resilience. It was delivered at a demonstration of Swedish gymnastics at the Albert Hall in London. Sir James presided and after watching the graceful movements of the athletic young people of both sexes said he hoped they would continue their exercises even when they were no longer young in years. "Some of us," he added, "who are watching should be in the arena doing what these young ones are doing. Their muscles are not hard and inflexible. Ours probably are." Sir James added that 80 per cent of the people of the world were imperfect. One leg was shorter than the other by perhaps the eighth of an inch or a two hundredth part of an inch. It was abnormal to be normal.

Quality Before Quantity.

More bigness, after all, is never a sound criterion of value. Art connoisseurs know this. They will pay more for a tiny painting by Vibert than for huge canvases by painters inferior to Vibert in ideas—and in vision.

To think qualitatively is, and always has been, a fundamental human need. It will always be. Not how much we possess, how much we produce, how much we export or import, but the quality of all our doing and feeling and believing—that is the thing.

The wealthiest of nations can at the same time be the most discontented, restless and unhappy. "More, more, more," is never the slogan of true success. Think quality, not quantity, is the dictate of truth to all of us.—H. Addington Bruce in the Chicago Daily News.

Tired of Household Devotions. E. F. Benson, son of the late archbishop of Canterbury, in a reminiscient record of his family life, tells that the Benson children grew rather weary of the rigors of devotion established in the household of the archbishop and, when the latter was absent, of Mrs. Benson, mother of the brood, saying: "We won't have prayers tonight for a treat!"

Source of Style.

"Your speeches do not display the accuracy of grammatical form which used to distinguish them."

"I've been afraid something like that would happen," replied Senator Sorghum. "I have been obliged to depend on a brand-new stenographer."

Hard Question to Answer.

Bobbie was fond of big words, and never let a chance slip by of using one. He did not, however, always get them in the right place. He was sick abed with an attack of measles. The doctor calling one day, took up a hand mirror and showed Bobbie how he looked. Bobbie gazed at his mottled face disgustedly in the mirror, and then looking up to the doctor, asked, "When do you think I will be back to civilization?"

EYELASHES THAT PASTE ON

Artificial Decoration Proves Innovation at Hair Dressing Association Exhibition.

Ladies' eyelashes have become saleable articles. The dressing table in lady's boudoir may now be adorned, in addition to numerous other things that admirers assume to be natural, with artificial lashes that paste on right over the regular ones.

This innovation in feminine attractiveness was on display in New York recently at the American Ladies' Hair Dressing association exhibition.

Other nature savers included a half bobbed wig to cover old-fashioned long hair, thus relieving the necessity of cutting it. A parable in moving picture form was shown demonstrating how a wife who had lost her husband's affection, regained it by rejuvenating her rose-petal cheeks.

Spanish Influence.

To Spain, that country of narrow streets and wide skirts, designers have gone for inspiration. Thus the very full skirts of the new frocks often are punctuated with ball trimming which you remember having seen on the flying skirts of some Spanish dancer.

Flowers Are Dangerous.

The odors of many familiar flowers are poisonous. The old self-colored tulips, particularly those of a deep crimson hue, have a powerful odor which is dangerous when inhaled. This odor is of saffron flavor, and affects many people in a very peculiar manner. If breathed deeply, it has the effect of producing light headedness, which continues for some time, causing the sufferer to do and say all manner of remarkable and mysterious things. Its influence often lasts for an hour or two, and is followed by deep depression.
